

Brasserie Chavot, London awarded its first Michelin Star.

Mayfair restaurant Brasserie Chavot has achieved the ultimate restaurant award - its first Michelin Star. Having only launched Brasserie Chavot in Conduit Street in March 2013, the mastermind behind the now Michelin-Starred restaurant Eric Chavot is absolutely delighted with the result, particularly after having achieved 3 AA Rosettes at the AA awards recently. Eric has created a classic French-style brasserie with ingredients sourced from across the British Isles as well as artisan producers from the rural regions of France, handpicking suppliers for crab from the West Country, langoustine from the Outer Hebrides, venison from Ireland, lamb from the Pyrénées and the very finest French charcuterie and cheese. Although, the restaurant has received great acclaim across the capital from foodies and critics alike, Eric who famously held two Michelin stars for an impressive ten years from 1999-2009 at The Capital Restaurant, was decidedly shocked to have accomplished such an award and pays homage to his team. www.brasseriechavot.com
